

I would urge you to NOT require location identification technology on VOIP phones. This should be an opt in based on free market demand and not your weird idea of what the consumer needs or wants.